

H l ne Rey is Professor of Economics at London Business School. Until 2007, she was at Princeton University, as Professor of Economics and International Affairs in the Economics Department and the Woodrow Wilson School. Her research focuses on the determinants and consequences of external trade and financial imbalances, the theory of financial crises and the organization of the international monetary system. She demonstrated in particular that countries gross external asset positions help predict current account adjustments and the exchange rate. In 2005 she was awarded an Alfred P. Sloan Research Fellowship. She received the 2006 Bern cer Prize (best European economist working in macroeconomics and finance under the age of 40). In 2012 she received the inaugural Birgit Grodal Award of the European Economic Association honoring a European-based female economist who has made a significant contribution to the Economics profession. Professor Rey is a Fellow of the British Academy. She is on the board of the Review of Economic Studies and associate editor of the AEJ: Macroeconomics Journal. She has been elected member-at-large of the Council of the European Economic Association. She is a CEPR Research Fellow and an NBER Research Associate. She is on the Board of the Autorit  de Contr le Prudentiel, a member of the Commission Economique de la Nation and of the Bellagio Group on the international economy. She writes a regular column for the French newspaper Les Echos. H l ne Rey received her undergraduate degree from ENSAE, a Master in Engineering Economic Systems from Stanford University and her PhDs from the London School of Economics and the Ecole des Hautes Etudes en Sciences Sociales.
