3. Abstract
We evaluate a program that aims to help vulnerable youth aged 15-18 find a job, improve their working conditions and strengthen their income generation capacity. In order to achieve these goals, the program, which is implemented in four regions of Bolivia, provides youth with soft-skills and vocational training, mentoring and support in finding a job or starting a business. The package the program offers includes courses on personal and economic empowerment, sexual and reproductive health, and training on vocational skills.

4. Data description
We will conduct a phone follow-up survey to look at employment outcomes before and after the Coronavirus lockout. We will also include questions on being affected by violence, and participation in social protests.
